

Recommended language for communicating end-of-life concepts

Poor statement	Possible interpretation by family	Better statement
Do you want us to do everything?	Do you care whether they live or die? Do you want us to try?	We want to work out what is the right thing to do.
What do you want us to do?	It is the family's responsibility to decide medical treatment – not the patient or doctor.	What would he or she want? OR What do you think he would want us to do?
We need your permission or consent to stop.	The family have total control of decision-making.	I would like to discuss with you whether it is appropriate to keep on
There is nothing more we can do. We are withdrawing treatment.	Abandonment.	We will do everything we can to ensure his or her last days are as comfortable and dignified as possible.
We are going to withdraw care.	The medical staff do not care.	We are recommending making comfort a priority and to stop doing unpleasant things that are not helping. OR We are recommending continuing good care while stopping treatments that are distressing and not helpful.
Futile treatment	Your relative's life is futile/worthless.	Overly burdensome or ineffective treatment. OR Treatment that is ineffective and distressing. OR Treatment that is worse than the disease itself.

Poor statement	Possible interpretation by family	Better statement
We can't be certain	Things are too uncertain for important decision-making.	We are as certain as we can be. OR There are some things that we can't be sure about but other things that are very clear. (i.e. focus on the most certain facts rather than on the least certain).
The medical team have decided	The family and their views do not matter at all.	We are becoming concerned that the burden of continuing this sort of treatment outweighs the benefit. I am afraid the treatment is not working.
We could do this or this or that (the 'shopping list').	The family have the power and responsibility to decide. Continued treatment is being offered and advocated by the doctor.	There are lots of treatments that we could do but it is important for us to discuss what we should do. OR We could theoretically do a number of things but I should like to discuss what we should actually do.
Terminal care. OR Comfort care.	Clichés that obscure meaning.	Reset our focus to ensure his or her end is as comfortable and dignified as we can make it. OR Reconsider our goals to make comfort the priority.
There is a lot of misinformation on the internet.	Family efforts to get information are being derided.	Can you show me what you have found so we can discuss it?
This is not euthanasia.	He is talking about euthanasia and using a controversial, highly emotional, weighted word.	Permitting to die (with a specific explanation of what is proposed).

Recommended language for communicating end-of-life concepts

Extract from ANZICS Statement on care and decision-making at the end of life for the critically ill, edition 1.0 2014 Table 5.1: Recommended language for communicating end-of-life concepts Reproduced with permission from the Australian & New Zealand Intensive Care Society, 2014